Nowadays, technologies are so interwoven into the texture of everyday life that life is un-thinkable without them. Winner describes this situation as follows: We do indeed use telephones, automobiles, electric lights, and computers in the conventional sense of picking them up and putting them down. But our world soon becomes one in which telephony, automobility, electric lightning, and computing are forms of life in the most powerful sense: life would scarcely be thinkable without them. (p. 11) Originally, the expression 'forms of life' (Lebensform) came...
