Stewart, Tabori Chang Inc, United States, 2008. Hardback. Book Condition: New. 236 x 196 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book. He s on the road again. This time, Alton Brown and his motorcycle-mounted crew are off on a thousand-mile, south-to-north journey that follows America s first superhighway --the Mississippi. Starting at the great river s delta on the Gulf of Mexico and ending up near its headwaters in Minnesota, Alton and buddies travel the heartland s byways to scout out the very best of roadside food--and to get to know the people who spend their lives preparing and serving it. A companion to the six-part Food Network series airing in fall 2007, Feasting on Asphalt: The River Run is a travel diary, photo journal, and, of course, cookbook. Alton s itinerary includes big-city eateries and small-town chat n chews, as well as markets, inns, ice cream parlors, museums, barbecue joints--and even an alligator farm. Louisiana-style Grilled Alligator Tail (served simply, with lemon and butter) is one of the book s forty original road-food recipes. Others include Pecan-Coconut Pie from an Arkansan roadside restaurant; BBQ Pork Ribs in Mississippi that Brown eats over pancakes; Vegetable Borscht from St. Paul s Russian Tea House; and Fried Catfish from a riverside burg in Illinois. When it comes to America s foodways and folkways, there s no better tour guide than Alton Brown.
